CITY TRUSTEES

The Usual Routine—The Dog Kennel Question Up Again

All present. A protest was received from J. W. Sharp and others protesting against the opening and widening of Orange street referred to city attorney in conjunction with city engineer. An application to do street work by private contract on a portion of Olive street was received from Tupper Robinson Co.; granted. A request was received from H. E. Colby that the Seventh Day Adventists be granted permit to hold camp meeting on the block bounded by Central, Orange and Fourth and Fifth streets, from August 5th for ten days; the same was granted. A communication from R. L. Phister requested that the present fire limits be extended on the west side of Brand to include property facing on the west side of that street, between Fifth and Sixth.

Protests were received against dog kennels located on Sycamore avenue and several interested parties appeared before the board and were heard, the matter being referred to committee of the whole.

An application was received from Middleworth & Walker for permit to put in two box ball alleys in store, 1108 West Broadway; same granted. E. L. Shipman requested permission to put up a tent in which to give a vaudeville show of two performances, at Louise and Broadway; granted.

Demands referred to finance committee, were reported back approved.

Trustee Lane reported that Second street east of Verdugo road, recently improved, was in fine condition; also that he had been unable to find a suitable location for dumping ground for rubbish.

The street superintendent reported that he had accepted work on Second street east of Verdugo road and on the latter road, good progress being made. President Watson appointed Trustee Thompson member of the public welfare committee.

Trustee Thompson reported having secured a flag for the city hall. The engineer was instructed to make estimate on cost of improving Vine street from Central avenue to San Fernando road. City engineer presented estimate as requested and same was approved.

Trustee Lane offered a resolution adopting map showing improvement of Vine street as contemplated, same being adopted. Trustee Tower offered a resolution declaring intention to improve a portion of Vine street; adopted. The same action followed in reference to improvement of a portion of Raleigh street. An ordinance adopting specifications for street work passed first and second reading. The street superintendent instructed to repair chuck holes in the streets and make repairs where needed. The fire chief was instructed to prepare an estimate on the cost of an adequate fire fighting apparatus and a system of hydrants.

At a recent meeting of the chamber of commerce, a committee consisting of W. B. Kirk, Frank Chase and J. C. Sherer was appointed to confer with Mr. Harrison, postmaster of Los Angeles, in reference to the situation in Glendale and vicinity regarding mail delivery. Previously the matter had been agitated in the columns of the NEWS, calling attention specifically to the necessity for enlarging the free delivery territory and providing for more prompt service within the territory already served. The appointment of the committee alluded to above was preceded by the adoption of the following resolution:

Whereas, The postal service in Glendale has not kept pace with the growth of our city, the office force being no larger than when the receipts were only one-third or one-half of what they are at the present time, thus causing unnecessary delay in the delivery of mail and in the other parts of the service; and

Whereas, Our manager, Mr. Robertson, a faithful and conscientious public servant, is compelled to labor for long hours after his work is supposed to be finished, in order to keep up with the work at all; and

Whereas, In parts of the sections of our newly annexed territory not at all remote from our postoffice, our citizens have no carrier service, but are compelled to wait for their mail by rural delivery route; therefore be it

Resolved, By the Chamber of Commerce of the City of Glendale that we urge the postal authorities in Los Angeles to look into this matter at once, and to correct these troubles, and that a committee of the chamber be appointed by the president to wait upon them and personally urge this greatly needed improvement of the service.

Tuesday morning last, two members of the committee, accompanied by Mr. F. L. Muhleman, waited upon Postmaster Harrison by appointment. The committee was pleased to learn that Mr. Harrison was fully informed in regard to the situation and at the time of the interview a special agent was at work on the matter getting ready his report for the department at Washington. He informed the committee that by August first at the latest he thought authority would be received to put into effect an enlarged system of delivery, the plan contemplating doing away with the present "R.F.D. No. 5" delivery which is in operation very unsatisfactorily around the edges of Glendale and Tropico.

Miss George Duffet has issued invitations for an afternoon tea to be held in her home, 1008 Chestnut street on Thursday.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

The pleasant reception given by the Tuesday Afternoon Club in the parlors of the Country Club on the afternoon of June 25th marked the close of the most prosperous and progressive year in the history of the club. About one hundred and twenty-five ladies, members and friends, gathered during the afternoon to bid adieux to the retiring officers and to extend a right hearty welcome to those who are to guide the affairs of the club during the coming year. The De Nobilio Trio furnished music for the occasion.

Acting in her official capacity for the last time, Mrs. Tower, retiring president, called the assembly to order and briefly reviewed the year's work. Many excellent programs have been presented and keenly appreciated. The membership of the club has been increased nearly seventy-five per cent, 60 new members having been added during the year, making a membership of one hundred and thirty-five. Financially the club is prospering, membership fees and subscriptions have nearly all been paid in full and the club has raised nearly three hundred and fifty dollars for the building fund. The board takes particular pride in the fact that at last grounds for a club house have been secured and one-half paid for.

After the president had concluded her remarks she called the new officers to the front and with a brief installation ceremony introduced them to the club. They are as follows: Mrs. R. E. Chase, president; Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, vice president; Mrs. Frank Grosvenor, secretary; Mrs. C. H. Bott, treasurer, and Mrs. H. E. Bartlett, Mrs. Helen Campbell and Mrs. W. E. Evans, members of executive board.

Mrs. Chase responded with a short address and the club felt thoroughly convinced that it had made a wise choice for next year's leader.

This report would not be complete without a word of commendation for the president and her efficient corps of officers who have in such a great measure contributed to the progress of the club. Particularly does the club appreciate their work in securing a club home.

The club is now well started on its vacation which it hopes to enjoy immensely both collectively and individually, and we part with the wish that next year will be bigger and better than ever.

Prominent business men of Glendale and Tropico are considering the incorporation of a half million dollar investment and building company. Real estate men have to refuse numbers of bargains for lack of capital to finance them, but with a directorate made up largely of real estate men it is estimated that a company with a large capital could make large profits, and do a good public work. It is not intended to open up new tracts, but to build up Glendale, Tropico and Eagle Rock from the center.

Los Angeles, June 18, 1912.

Mr. J. C. Sherer,
Editor NEWS, Glendale, Cal.

Next Monday night marks one hundredth consecutive performance of Mission Play. Your town should be officially represented on that occasion at San Gabriel. May I ask you to make mention in your paper and urge chamber of commerce to send delegation with other citizens to boost for your town. Yours fraternally,

JOHN S. McGROARTY.

ADVENTIST CAMP MEETING.

Arrangements for this affair, which it is estimated will bring 2,000 outsiders to Glendale during the ten days beginning August 5, have been completed. The block between Central and Orange streets from Fifth to Sixth has been secured.

A MIDSUMMER NIGHT WEDDING.

On Tuesday evening, June 25th, the Glendale Presbyterian church was converted into a bower of white and green in which two hundred guests assembled to witness the solemnization of the marriage ceremony which united in holy matrimony Bessie Iline Furst, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Oliver J. Furst, and Robert Thompson Lyans, Rev. Walter E. Edmonds officiating, assisted by Rev. H. Gaugh Birchby of La Jolla.

Prior to the ceremony, Mr. E. S. Conklin of Los Angeles sang "I Hear You Calling." Then, through the silence came the soft strains of Lohengrin's wedding march to which the bridal party advanced slowly to the altar. First came the maid of honor, Miss Blanche Lyans, prettily gowned in white marquisette and lace, carrying an armful of white sweet peas, followed by the tiny twins Ruth and Esther Edmonds, who presided as ring bearer and flower girl respectively. Last came the bride escorted by her father. Miss Furst was especially beautiful in white crepe meteor cut entraine. She wore the conventional bridal veil and wreath of orange blossoms and carried a handsome shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Clifford D. Furst, brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony seventy-five of the immediate friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Lyans attended the reception held in the bride's home at 215 East Fifth street.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyans left for a brief wedding tour in the mountains, after which they will be at home to their friends August 1st, in their residence on Fifth street.

The bride is one of the prettiest and most popular of Glendale's young girls and has made a host of friends since her arrival here, two and a half years ago.

The groom is a graduate of the state college of Iowa and is now employed as teller in the Glendale First National bank.

A FAREWELL PARTY.

Mrs. J. Lampert of 301 West Fifth street entertained the Intermediate C. E. Society of the Presbyterian church Monday night, June 24th. The affair was in honor of May Williamson who leaves Thursday the 27th to be gone through the summer. Games and music were indulged in, after which ice cream and cake was served. Those present were Doty Anderson, Vivian Engle, Ralph Carmichael, Marion Carmichael, Mildred Carmichael, Lulu Belden, May Williamson, Ray Engle, Ted Robertshaw, Gladys Lampert.

CHURCH PICNIC.

The Glendale Presbyterian church and Sunday school will picnic at Griffith Park today (Friday). Conveyances will leave the church, Broadway and Cedar street, at 9 o'clock a. m. All proposing to go on this picnic will please be at the church at that hour so that a prompt start may be made. All members of the church and Sunday school and friends of the church are cordially invited to go.

ATTENTION COMRADES!

Friday, June 28th, at 10:30, will be the second post meeting of the month. At 12 noon the W. R. C. will provide dinner for comrades and their families. There will be an after dinner program by the members of the order with a surprise connected. All old soldiers be sure to be present.

HIGH SCHOOL

COMMENCEMENT SOCIAL AFFAIRS.

Alumni Supper and Initiation.

On Saturday evening the class of 1912 was duly and impressively initiated into the Alumni Association of Glendale Union high school. The affair was transacted in the G.A.R. hall which was gaily decked with pennants, other school emblems and greenery. The class of '12 arrived arrayed in various costumes ranging from meek and modest milk maids to bold and warlike Indians. After the initiation service which is supposed to be a deep and deadly secret, but isn't, the members were asked to adjourn to the supper room where long tables were spread and covers arranged for sixty guests. Decorations were a profusion of lavender and white sweet peas in honor of the new alumni. Following the supper officers were elected for the ensuing year. They were: Alexander McElroy, president; Fay Stone, vice president; Tirzale Snell, secretary and treasurer. The committee in charge of initiation were Miss Pearl Goode, Miss Myrtle Pulliam, Mr. Ray Morrow and Mr. Allen Davenport. Those in charge of the supper were Miss Grace Grady, Miss Luella Moore and Miss Amy Johnson. The decorating was done under the supervision of Miss Emily Ellias.

JUNIOR BANQUET.

On Friday evening the Junior class of 1913 entertained the graduating class of 1912 at an elaborately planned and executed seven course banquet, which was held in the gymnasium of the high school. Lavender and white was everywhere. The tables were daintily decked with lavender and white sweet peas and festoons of ferns. Covers were marked by hand-painted place cards of lavender sweet peas. Following the banquet, under the leadership of Miss Irene Grady, toast mistress, toasts were given upon every known subject pertaining to schools and commencements. The affair was one of the principal social successes of Senior week.

ANNIVERSARY LUNCHEON.

Miss Lucile Parker entertained her friends of the graduating class of 1911 at luncheon on Saturday at high noon, just one year from the date on which the class graduated. Dainty and charming were all the plans made for the pleasure of the guests. An immense rustic basket of dark red sweet peas with maiden hair fern graced the center of the table; the handle of the basket bore a filmy butterfly bow of palest gray, making the crimson and silver grey of the class of '11. Covers were marked by hand-painted place cards of girl graduates carrying pennants in grey and crimson. Tiny individual hampers tied with grey and crimson ribbon and filled with bon bons were an original touch. In short every possible detail was arranged in harmony with the colors of the class. A pleasant afternoon was devoted to music and a recollection of school days, concluding with two guessing games in which Miss Grace Grady and Miss Elva Spencer were decided victors and were awarded respectively a handsome Irish crochet jobot and a hand-painted plate of crimson sweet peas on a background of pale grey. Those present at the happy event were Miss Pearl Goode, Miss Grace Grady, Miss Evelyn Ryan, Miss Myrtle Pulliam, Miss Emma Pulliam, Miss Emily Ellias and Miss Elva Spencer who has just returned from a year at Berkeley.

IVY DAY.

Ivy Day was observed Wednesday evening of Senior week for the first time in the history of Glendale Union High School, but those witnessing the rites of the pretty custom would never have supposed that it was an initial performance. The ceremony was transacted on the high school lawn, with the stately white building as an appropriate background. In twos and twos the members of the class of '12, both boys and girls, in white relieved by lavender, and carrying garlands of ivy, marched through the figures of a pretty but simple drill, at the conclusion of which the ivy was planted at the northeast corner of the building, each member assisting in digging the hole. After this was correctly done, Dana Burket presented the shovel to Katherine Hobbs of '13, to be carefully guarded until Ivy Day of the next year. Then, after a spirited rendering of the class song, Prof. Howe gave a short and appropriate address. The scene made a charming picture to be carried in the memories of the audience.

COMMENCEMENT.

Senior week terminated with the graduation exercises held Thursday evening in the high school auditorium, which was crowded to its utmost capacity. Claude O. Pulliam, president of the board of trustees, gave an appropriate address and presented the class with their diplomas. The principal address of the evening was made by John S. McGroarty, who spoke on the "Romance and History" of California.

The evening's programme was as follows: March, "Aida" (Verdi); Swing Song, Ethel Barnes; minuet from "Military" symphony (Haydn), High School Orchestra; invocation, Rev. J. W. Utter; violin solo, "Adagio Religioso" (Vieuxtemps), Julius Kranz; address, Hon. John S. McGroarty; serenade, "I Would That My Love" (Mendelssohn), Senior Girls' Glee Club; presentation of class memorial, Hazel Everts; presentation of class, George U. Moyse; presentation of diplomas, Claude O. Pulliam, president of board of trustees; distribution of flowers; "Poet and Peasant" (Suppe), High School Mandolin Club; "America," by audience.

Miss Elis Tipton, valedictorian of the class, was presented with a gold watch by her classmates and teachers as a token of their regard.

At the close of the exercises Prof. Moyse, in a short speech, spoke of the general regret of the teachers and the school regarding the resignation of Mr. E. D. Goode from the high school board. Mr. Goode had always been a tireless worker for the welfare of the school.

One of the pleasantest midsummer social events in the younger circles was the automobile surprise party held Monday evening in honor of George Mitchell's birthday anniversary. Six automobiles loaded with young people and good things to eat arrived at his home on Kenneth road. After the honored host's genuine (?) surprise had been completely exhausted, he was generously showered with gifts ranging from a bag of candy to a soap bubble set, with all the latest improvements. A delicious and sumptuous picnic supper was served beneath trees hung with myriads of Japanese lanterns. Chief among the attractions was a birthday cake bearing a very great many lighted candles, after supper, one and all adjourned to a huge bon fire where marsh-mallows were toasted. This completed the evening's jollities and the visitors all returned to where they belonged.

Invitations have been issued for the regular monthly dance to be held in the Country Club parlors Friday evening.

Brand boulevard property owners are requested to send in their names to S. W. Martin, 302 Blanchard Hall, Los Angeles, if they are in favor of having the building restrictions modified to $2000. It is estimated that Brand boulevard property will advance 50 per cent when the restrictions are made reasonable.

THE CROCKER CASE

In the Hands of the Jury at End of Third Day—Verdict of Guilty Rendered at 1:40 p. m.

Have you been drawn on the Crocker or Ellis jury yet? Never mind; you will yet have a chance; it has only begun. For two days past, in the recorder's office, the first case that has come to trial under the ordinance attempting to control the use and sale of strong drink in the city of Glendale, passed in 1908, has held the boards, with Recorder Whomes presiding, City Attorney W. E. Evans as prosecutor, and Mr. Sturgeon of Los Angeles acting as attorney for the defendant. A venire of thirty jurymen was summoned in the first instance, and a second call was made for ten more to be on hand Wednesday morning, owing to the exhaustion of the first. The first day's proceedings constituted the most exciting day that Glendale has experienced—well, since the May Day Festival, anyhow. In fact, as a show there was never its equal here. To say that Attorney Sturgeon is a scrapper from Scrappersville is putting it mildly, for the things that he couldn't object to have not yet been discovered, and there is an evident fear, in the minds of all concerned that the search for them is hopeless. Both sides did pretty well in the objecting business when it came to the selection of a jury. A lot of good men and true who would have adorned any jury box were let off, sometimes because they admitted having looked upon the wine at a distance, and again when they confessed to having once been Prohibitionists. On Tuesday passages at arms between the opposing counsel were constantly occurring, and the defendant's counsel succeeded in getting himself fined $10 for contempt of court before the noon hour. In the afternoon, following an exchange of left-handed compliments between attorneys, the lie was passed, and Mr. Evans struck Mr. Sturgeon a blow in the face. This evened up the fines, as one was immediately assessed against Mr. Evans. When the court convened Wednesday morning, Judge Whomes, after admonishing the attorneys to observe more strictly the amenities, rescinded both fines and started the attorneys on an even footing for the day. Mr. Sturgeon apologizing to the court and admitting that Mr. Evans had been justified in striking him. It took until noon to complete the jury, which, as sworn in, consisted of the following citizens:

L. W. Chobe, J. C. Pierce, David Gregg, H. Valliant, L. W. Fitzgerald, J. N. McGinis, C. H. Boyd, C. O. Pulliam, G. W. Linn, J. W. Lawson, E. D. Goode, C. M. Lund.

After the jury had been selected, the defense made a motion, accompanied by an affidavit, for a change of venue to another court, alleging prejudice on the part of the citizens of Glendale against the defendant, charging that the people in this city are so prejudiced against people who use liquor in any form or to any extent that a fair trial on this matter cannot be obtained. The point was made by City Attorney Evans that the trial had already begun, and under the statute no change of venue can be made at that stage of the proceedings, and the court sustained him. Deputy Marshal Everett was the first witness, and after one or more objections being made to almost every question asked, was finally permitted to tell the story of the raid made by Marshal Miller, C. E. Stanley and himself. He admitted that he knew whisky, beer and wine when he saw them, and was quite sure he had seen them and seen them used in the early morning of June 16. He had watched the premises in Verdugo Canyon the most of the time from 10:30 p. m. to 3:30 a. m., when the arrests were made, having a position near a window most of the time. Had gathered in several bottles of the liquid refreshments alluded to, and pointed to the collection in a corner of the court room as being these exhibits. Had seen persons of both sexes arrive and leave the premises before the arrests were made, a party of four or five being in an automobile. Saw drinks passed on a tray several times, but saw no money paid. He testified to having seen dancing and drinking and hearing ragtime music.

In answer to a question by the city attorney, the witness testified that there were present, besides the arresting officers, Wardell, Foss, Rehart, Fish, Ellis, and one woman in addition to the defendant.

Attorney Sturgeon tried to make the witness admit that he knew of other places where liquor is kept, and also that on a certain other occasion he had refused to do anything to stop its use. These questions were not allowed. At 5 o'clock Everett completed his testimony, and court adjourned until 8 p. m.

Wednesday night at 8 o'clock the case was resumed. Marshal Miller, one of the arresting officers, gave testimony similar to that given by Mr. Everett. Sol Rehart etstified to having been present the night the arrest was made, and that he had bought some of the refreshments partaken of. The prosecution closed its case, and Mrs. Crocker was called by the defense. She admitted possession of the liquor, but claimed that it was not for sale and was intended only for use of self and friends. About 11 o'clock court adjourned until 10 a. m. Thursday. The case is on trial as we go to press, with prophecies made on the outside to the effect that the jury will disagree.

LATER—At 1:40 p. m. the jury, C. O. Pulliam, foreman, brought in a verdict of "guilty" and the defendant was put under $500 bail to appear for sentence at 10 a. m. Saturday.

GLENDALE, CAL., JUNE 28, 1912

The Democratic brethren at Baltimore are having a choice assortment of trouble of their own.

The Los Angeles Express says Frances J. Heney is a "brave and refined gentleman," which is interesting if true.

Mr. Jay E. Randall of Artesia, is a candidate for the state senate in the thirty-third district. Mr. Randall is an anti-machine, unhyphenated Republican of the able and independent variety of which statesmen are made. We hope that intelligent and patriotic Republicans will prove numerous enough in his district to nominate and elect him.

In accepting the resignation of Thos. E. Gibbon, Mayor Alexander has permitted the city of Los Angeles to be deprived of a most valuable member of the harbor commission. Mr. Gibbon has for many years been an authority on harbor and transportation matters, and is peculiarly fitted for the work to be done by the commission. The mayor does not seem to be sleeping on a bed of roses these days.

The president has pardoned two men convicted in the Oregon land fraud cases by Prosecutor Francis J. J. Heney. The latter went to Oregon to put somebody in prison and he did so. An agent of the government has been inevstigating the cases for some months past and disclosed the fact that the men were convicted by packed juries, the prosecution having ascertained the opinions of the veniremen before they were drawn as jurors, after which he selected only those who could be depended upon to give a verdict of guilty.

HOW TO STOP THE PAPER.

The people generally are hereby notified again that this paper is not a charitable concern and they are not required to take it from the postoffice if they do not want it. If they do take it from the office, however, they are expected to pay for it. We do not stop a paper at the expiration of the time for which payment has been made usually, because this is just what the majority of our subscribers do not want us to do. Delinquents to whom bills have been sent will please understand that a notice to stop the paper or a refusal to take it from the postoffice does not cancel their debt. We will cheerfully stop sending it to any one who does not want it, but we expect payment for it to date.—Burbank Review.

PLEASED.

We are pleased with the result of the Chicago convention. The causes of our pleasure are manifold. We are pleased with the formation of a new party even though it is recognized by Governor Johnson as a "solemn occasion;" solemnity is sometimes a becoming garb. We are pleased with the nomination of W. H. Taft, and shall support him with pleasure because we believe that he deserved it and has been grossly and systematically maligned. We are pleased with the action of Col. Roosevelt and shall be pleased with his actions in the immediate future whatever they may be, because he is always an interesting object. We are most pleased however by the fact that at last we have a Republican party, well rid of the foreign element which well nigh swamped it. We do not believe the lugubrious predictions of the Jeremiahs whom it has left stranded on the lee shore, that its dissolution is near at hand. Possibly it may have to go through fire—and mud—but it will survive. The New Thoughts in political affairs should have a party of their own, and a platform setting forth to the daylight all their fads and fancies in government—they should have a candidate who represents them and can add from day to day new frills of his own, all of which will add more or less to the gayety of the nation.

We are furthermore immensely pleased with the predicament of the band wagon politicians who are impaled on the fence of uncertainty and know not which way to jump.

THE WATER QUESTION.

We learn from a Los Angeles contemporary that the city of Burbank is looking into the advisability of purchasing the well and water supply "belonging to L. C. Perand."

Of course this means the plant belonging to Mr. L. C. Brand, which we understood has been offered to the city of Glendale.

This would seem to indicate that there is at least one other place in the San Fernando valley that is not going to jump at the chance of getting Owens river water when there is something better in sight. It also emphasizes the necessity for prompt action by the city of Glendale in regard to Mr. Brand's liberal offer. The idea has been advanced by one or two members of the water committee that when Glendale purchases a water plant, it should make sure of providing for a great and more or less distant future. It does not seem to us necessary to do this; the claim of the future should not be disregarded, but there is no good reason apparent why the city should not acquire, as it can, any of the existing water rights and supplies that are attainable on advantageous terms, as such action need not prevent purchasing a larger supply when the need for it is more pressing than at present. If the city becomes the owner of even a small supply it should be able to demonstrate in a small way the feasibility and desirability of municipal ownership and so prepare the public for a larger enterprise.

REFORM NEEDED.

The trial which is going on in Glendale as we go to press, in which the defendant is charged with violating the liquor ordinance, shows the necessity for a reform in laws which allow attorneys to monpolize the time of the court by tactics which should not be permitted in any court of justice. This is no reflection upon Judge Whomes, who has endeavared to maintain the dignity of his court with reasonable success. The scenes enacted here are duplicated in the courts of Los Angeles and other large cities very frequently, with the exception of the actual personal encounters between lawyers, and even these sometimes occur. The latitude allowed to attorneys is not conducive to achieving the ends of justice. It is inexcusable that good citizens should be taken from their business, compelled to serve as jurors without pay and be made the target of abuse and insult at the hands of attorneys who take advantage of the laws that permit it. Of course the right of trial by jury is guaranteed by our constitution, but that is no reason why lawyers need be permitted to bring the system into disrepute.

It is ridiculous that the law permits as wide a latitude in a misdemeanor case as it does when the life or the personal liberty of a citizen is involved. When a prisoner is on trial for his life he should have thrown about him every reasonable protection from a miscarriage of justice, but when the case involves merely the infraction of a city ordinance, the privilege of peremptory challenge and a long tedious and irrelevant examination of jurors might well be curtailed.

There will be no "dark brown" taste or languid feeling if you use Rexall Liver Salts. Only at Nesom's Drug Store.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Gilbousen announce the engagement of their daughter, Elsie to Edgar S. Smith. The marriage will take place the early part of July.

WATER COMMITTEE MEETING.

Chairman Watson has called a meeting of the water commission to assemble at 7:30 Saturday evening next at the city hall Mr. Lynch has a report to make on the proposition for the city to buy the Miradero Water Company of Mr. L. C. Brand, and probably other properties will be considered.

WEST GLENDALE M. E. CHURCH.

The entertainment given by the gleaners class last Friday evening was very much enjoyed by all who attended. The debate, Resolved, That the president should be elected for six years of one term only," was won by the negative side. Very good arguments were presented by both sides. Mrs. Van Luven read a comic newspaper entitled, "The Western Tattler," giving information about almost every one in the church. Lucile Spencer's class prophecy, "A Dream of the Future," was a dream which all hope may be realized in twenty years. The solo, "Asleep in the Deep," rendered by Prof. Krinbill, was much appreciated and he responded to an encore. The duet by Mr. Henderson and Prof. Krinbill, the solo by Geo. Lyons accompanied by Mr. McAdams on cornet and a quartet, were all much enjoyed. Receipts at the door amounted amounted to $10.25.

Tuesday evening Miss Myrtle Wightman entertained the church choir at her home, corner Sixth and Central avenue. The evening was spent in the playing of games and with music. A very dainty luncheon was served and the guests departed feeling that they had spent a delightful evening.

CHARTER COMMITTEE RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, Some of the newspapers of the county, belonging to the County Press Association, are opposing the proposed county charter in advance of its preparation and without knowledge as to what it will or will not contain; and

Whereas, A considerable part, if not all, of such opposition appears to spring from the wholly erroneous idea that the charter can in some way affect, or advance, the consolidation of the governments of the city and county of Los Angeles; and

Whereas, It is not only advisable, but just, that the charter, when framed, be placed before the people without prejudice against it or misunderstanding of it; therefore be it

Resolved, That this board earnestly requests the County Press Association, and the various newspapers composing the same, carefully, and with the aid of legal counsel, if advisable, to investigate the question as to the bearing which the proposed charter may or may not have upon such consolidation; and be it further

Resolved, That the newspapers of the county be, and they hereby are, respectfully requested to suspend judgment upon the charter until its preparation is complete; and be it further

Resolved, That the secretary of this board be, and he hereby is, directed to furnish a copy of this resolution to each newspaper belonging to the County Press Association.

LOS ANGELES THEATRES

BELASCO THEATER—THE GREAT NAME.

The special engagement of Lewis S. Stone at the Belasco theater will end with this week's production of "The Great Name." In New York and other important cities of the East, Henry Kolker played The Great Name last season with much success. The play is of German origin—its authors are Victor Leon and Leo Feld. The American version is the work of James Clarence Harvey. In the Belasco presentation, Harry Mestayer will be seen in his original role, a young librettist to a writer of popular operettas. "The Great Name" has to do with the trials and triumphs of a coterie of musicians and the play has much of a humorous and pathetic character that cannot fail to arouse an uncommon degree of interest.

Mr. Stone will have the original Kolker part, that of a successful composer of light operas, a musician who has been denied a diploma by his conservatory. It is a singularly sympathetic part, dramatically strong at moments and always uncommonly interesting, interesting inasmuch as this successful but uninspired composer finds the brightest student of his class a failure in financial matters, practically unknown save as a violinist of ordinary repute, with his every hope centered upon a symphony that no director or publisher will look at because it lacks a great composer's name to attract the public. To this symphony the genius of the operetta lends his name with the result that the obscure musician reaps the success that for years has been denied him.

In the third act of the play, the symphony written especially for the play by Theodore Bendix will be played by the Belasco orchestra, which will be augmented for this occasion.

BURBANK THEATER, FIFTH WEEK OF "PEG O' MY HEART."

Local theater goers have showed such a strong desire to see Laurette Taylor and the Burbank stock company in Hartley Manners' successful comedy, "Peg 'o My Heart," that the popular Burbank has not known a vacant seat since the first performance, a month ago. The attendance continues at the high water mark and the advance sale of seats is of such large proportions as to warrant another week—the fifth—of the Manners' play.

John Cort, the famous New York manager, saw the performance of "Peg o' My Heart" last Monday night and immediately closed a deal whereby the piece will be used to open the new Cort theater in New York next September. It was made a part of the agreement that Laurette Taylor is to appear in the same role in which she is seen at the Burbank, that Henry Stanford shall play his original role and that the Burbank production, intact, shall be taken to New York for this important offering. Manager Cort is enthusiastic over "Peg 'o My Heart" and prophesies a sweeping success for it on Broadway.

In view of the fact that Miss Taylor is to appear for a limited engagement with the Aleazar stock company in San Francisco, and on account also of the contracted-for—and prepared—production of Mr. Manners' new play "Barbaraza," the end of the "Peg o' My Heart" run is in sight and the Burbank management announces that this week will positively be the last of this extraordinary popular comedy.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Newton left Wednesday morning in their auto to attend the C. E. convention at Fresno. They expect to reach that place Saturday and after the convention will spend a few days sightseeing. Mr. and Mrs. Newton expect to return to Glendale about July 6th.

Mr. Peter L. Ferry, the contractor, has completed his work on the improvement of Glendale avenue in Tropico and is busy on Verdugo road where he has almost a mile and a half of roadway to make with curbs, the largest single job of street work yet done in the city.

Learn How Long a Minute Is.

A railroad man recently said that few persons realize how long a minute really is. He said if the ordinary passenger reaches a station and finds the train will go out in one minute he is nearly frantic. He rushes madly for it, knocking obstructionists in every direction, falling over himself, losing his breath, barking his shins and damaging the scenery generally, to fall up the steps and gasp unpleasantly for the next half hour. If, on the other hand, a railroad man wishes to take a train he waits until half a minute of the starting time, puts on his overcoat and hat leisurely, saunters across the yard, perhaps stops to give a few instructions to a workman and swings himself calmly up on to the steps in ample time before the train begins to move. No; it is not only because he knows the ropes, but because he has an accurate idea how much time there is in a minute. Perhaps that explains their clocks.—New York Tribune.

Unreal Suns.

The mock suns of the arctic regions are somewhat similar to the mirages of the desert. As the long winter night of the polar region wanes, once every twenty-four hours a slight glow is seen at some point on the horizon. Often accompanying this glow is seen the phenomenon of the mock suns. Several degrees up in the heavens as many as five of these spectral orbs have been seen at one time. Invariably they are all connected in a geometric figure, the suns seemingly bound together with circles and arcs of light. Often when only one appears it is mistaken for the real god of day, and natives rejoice at the early end of the long winter night, only to be disappointed as the image disappears. The explanation of the phenomenon is given by physicists as refraction and reflection of light from the real sun below the horizon on the mists in the upper atmosphere.

Fires That Never Go Out.

There are many household fires in England which are kept burning continuously. In several Yorkshire inns—which, like the Falcon, on Cloughton moor, make a specialty of peat cakes—there is always a ruddy glow on the hearth.

There are whole districts in Wales, too, where domestic fires never go out. Once lit, they are kept alight because of the difficulty of starting them. This is owing to the peculiar character of the fuel, which is culm, a mixture of anthracite coal and clay. In every house in the culm districts the last job at night is making up the fire, and then it is time for bed. There is no inclination to tarry, for nothing looks more dead than the black, sodden mass from which smoke is curling. But in the morning the bellows quickly bring a blaze, and the kettle boils in ten minutes' time.—London Answers.

Estimating the Damage.

The wagon and the eggs had been settled for, and now it came to deciding on the value of the farmer's horse, which lay unquestionably dead in the ditch.

"Now," said Winkles, leaning back in the tonneau, "how much do you want for the horse?"

"Twenty dollars, I guess," said the farmer.

"Twenty dollars!" echoed Winkles. "For that old skate? Why, he's nothing but a hat rack—a perfect plug."

"Waal," drawled the farmer, "reckonin' on that there basis, the last time I got a skate on it cost me $9. Ye can't git a hat rack fittin' to be seen fer less 'n $12, and, as fer the plug, I paid $4 fer the last beaver hat I bought to wear to meetin'. That's $25 on your own figgerin' without no pay fer buryin' the critter."—Harper's.

Tree Fences.

In his book on Newfoundland P. T. McGrath has this to say of the Beothic Indians: "They felled trees to form fences to stop the caribou in their annual migration and head them toward the rivers, where they could more easily kill them. Travelers who subsequently came upon these fences say they often extended thirty or forty miles and were most ingenious in their construction, the trees being cut so that they fell on one another and their branches being then interlaced in such a fashion as made it impossible for the deer to escape."

A Tip to Mamma.

"Mamma," said small Sadie to her mother, who had been very ill, "I'm glad you are able to be up again, but—but"—

"But what, dear?"

"Papa does put such a lot of butter on our dry toast at breakfast."—Chicago News.

Tit For Tat.

"You know," said a smart young man to a girl, "some one has said that if you want a lasting pair of boots make the soles of the tongue of a woman."

"Yes," replied the girl, "and for the uppers you ought to take the cheek of the man who said it."—London Tit-Bits.

All He Would Get.

"Pebbles says he is thinking of running for congress. Do you think that would be advisable?"

"Well, the exercise might do him good."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

A Kind Boss.

"Is your boss a kind man?"

"Sure. My wife came down to draw my pay one day while I was out on a job, and he wouldn't let her have it."—Buffalo Express.

The brightest blaze of intelligence is of incalculably less value than the smallest spark of charity.—Nevins.

BOTH SIDES of the SHIELD

by MAJOR ARCHIBALD W. BUTT

[Copyright, 1905, by J. B. Lippincott company. All rights reserved.]

PRESIDENT TAFT'S TOUCHING TRIBUTE TO MAJOR ARCHIBALD W. BUTT.

Major Archibald W. Butt was one of the heroes of the Titanic. He was President Taft's military aid. After Major Butt's death the president, with tears in his eyes and faltering voice, made him the subject of one of the most heartfelt eulogies ever pronounced over a gallant man, praising his manhood, his courage, his loyalty, his self sacrifice.

"Everybody knew Archie as 'Archie,'" said the president. "I cannot go into a box at a theater, I cannot turn around in my room, I cannot go anywhere, without expecting to see his smiling face or to hear his cheerful voice in greeting. The life of the president is rather isolated, and those appointed to live with him come much closer to him than any one else. The bond is very close, and it is difficult to speak on such an occasion.

"Archie Butt's character was simple, straightforward and incapable of intrigue. A clear sense of humor lightened his life and those about him. Life was not for him a troubled problem. He was a soldier, and, when he was appointed to serve under another, to that other he rendered implicit loyalty. I never knew a man who had so much self abnegation, so much self sacrifice, as Archie Butt.

"Occasions like the sinking of the Titanic frequently develop unforeseen traits in men. It makes them heroes when you don't expect it. But with Archie it was just as natural for him to help those about him as it was for him to ask me to permit him to do something for some one for me.

"He was on the deck of the Titanic exactly what he was everywhere. He leaves a void with those who loved him, but the circumstances of his going are all that we would have had, and, while tears fill the eyes and the voice is choked, we are felicitated by the memory of what he was."

Before entering upon military life Major Butt displayed high literary ability. The best of his stories is "Both Sides of the Shield," a splendidly written romance of love and war.

CHAPTER I.

The City Editor's Assignment.

MR. PALMER—You will start for the south tomorrow and write a series of letters on the educational and social conditions existing in that section. Avoid the cities and beaten tracks and let your pictures be drawn from life. This will be an order on the business office for what money you may need.

Such were the orders I found one morning on my desk in the city editor's room of a well known Boston newspaper. Of the labor involved in such an assignment I was ignorant, and I saw only a pleasant trip in that part of my country in which I had never traveled. I had been employed on the paper for a comparatively short time—in fact, I had been in journalism for a period of less than two years—so that such an assignment as the one now given me was highly flattering to me, and I knew it would be equally gratifying to my father, who had watched my career with that interest which attaches solely to an only son. I had not been out of Harvard very long when I had taken the advice of an eminent literary man, a friend of my father, and entered journalism as a first stepping stone to literary distinction. The few short stories I had written, however, had been returned to me by the magazines to which I had sent them with a promptness that was calculated to dampen my ardor and otherwise to discourage me. I had been led to believe that my style was exceptionally good and that I was not without a keen sense of humor, at the same time possessing a proper appreciation of the pathetic.

I had taken a prize at the high school for an essay, and later, when my talents began to develop at the university, I was elected to fill a place on the editorial staff of one of the monthly periodicals published there. I was chagrined, therefore, when my manuscripts, written legibly on fine linen paper, tied with the best silk ribbon to be had, came back to me. I began to form a very poor opinion of our magazines. Possessing an independent fortune, I determined to publish my writings in book form at my own expense. I took my manuscripts to a publisher, who, honest man that he was, was kind enough to tell me that people did not think much of books published at the author's own expense. Determined at length to get a proper estimate of my work, I sought out an old friend of the family who had achieved fame by his pen. He reviewed my stories and in a ruthless sort of way, as it seemed to me then, told me that some of my ideas were good, but expressed clumsily. He advised me to cease all attempts at literary composition and to seek a place on a newspaper. "Writing must become a habit with you," he said, "before you can hope to express your thoughts gracefully. What you need most is ease, and if you can avoid the pitfalls of journalism you may in time succeed in your ambition." It took me just another six months to make up my mind to follow his advice, and when I did so it was with some degree of humiliation that I discovered that there was not a reporter on the paper who did not write better than I. Constant application in my new undertaking, however, and the hard work I had done at the university soon brought me my reward. I was being singled out constantly for important local assignments, and once I had been sent to Washington on a delicate mission.

I picked up again the order which lay on my desk and read it over the second time. I thought I saw the earmarks of politics in it, and, while the racial question was not mentioned, I believe that it was this problem I was to discuss. I had made a suggestion on this line some months before, but the managing editor had not taken kindly to the idea at the time. The order as I read it over seemed indefinite. I thought, and I started with it to the managing editor's room. As I presented myself before that austere little cripple—physical, but not mental, for mentally he was a giant—I was outwardly calm, but my heart was beating a tattoo inside, for there were few of us who did not fear to stand before him unless very sure of the ground on which we stood. I said, however, in a businesslike way, as if such assignments were daily occurrences to me:

"I have come to see you about this assignment, sir."

"What assignment?" he asked.

"For me to go south tomorrow," I answered.

"Oh, you are Palmer, are you?" he said, calmly looking me over through his spectacles. "I thought you were older. I have noticed your work and gave you the present assignment on account of it. Have you come to say you are not equal to it?"

"Oh, you are Palmer, are you?"

I was somewhat surprised when I learned that he did not even remember me, but the fact that he had judged me by my work was at least gratifying, so I hastened to say:

"No, sir. I feel perfectly able to do the work, but the order appears a little indefinite to me as to time."

Without looking up again, for he had resumed his proofreading, he said:

"Take your own time, but I shall say two months ought to suffice. What I want are facts, not discolored, distorted pictures."

He did not even say good morning indeed, he seemed to have dismissed me from his mind. With an indifferent bow I retired, wondering why managing editors think it a part of their official duties to be ill mannered. I was sorry that I had not asked him exactly what he wanted, but on this point I felt reasonably certain, however, for there was to be a presidential election the following year, and the more I thought of it the more certain I became that my letters were to be used to arouse sentiment in New England against the opposing party and thereby make certain the electoral vote of that section. My work would not only make certain the New England vote, but possibly save the vote of some of the middle western states. My father had been an abolitionist and his father before him. They had been called doctrinaires by their neighbors, but they had lived to see those principles become the nation's shibboleth. My father lived to modify many of his ideas, but I refused persistently to modify my views as they had been inculcated into me by my rugged old grandfather.

As I read the order of my assignment over again it seemed to me to be a command to charge the enemy. The old abolition blood was in my veins and was running at high tide. With feverish haste I made ready for my departure. Packing up a few things and putting my writing materials in my grip where I could the more easily get at them, I started for what I still looked upon as the enemy's country.

As I sped south the possibilities of a brilliant future arose before me. When I reached Baltimore I looked down from the window of the car and recalled the scenes enacted there, when my father was one of those stoned while on their way to the defense of their country. The day grew rapidly on, and as the train pulled into Washington the lofty dome of the capitol, bathed in the fresh light of an April morning, dispelled my resentful thoughts and led them back to the beautiful scenes which were always uppermost in my father's memory whenever he talked of the south and of the friends he had made there after the bitter days of the campaign were over. After leaving Washington every station became of interest, and there was no detail from which I did not draw some moral. I had determined to pierce the border states and seek for the information I desired from the land where the palmetto, the pine and the live oak live side by side. The windows of the car had been raised and through them came the bracing winds from the Blue Ridge, and I could catch occasionally the strange minor notes of the negroes at work in the fields. I was alive to every impression, and I took out my notebook to chain in my memory some of the passing scenes.

That evening I finished my first letter and mailed it from the train.

When I reached Atlanta I made inquiry as to the best means of reaching some of the outlying counties, where I could study the social and educational conditions of this people out of the beaten tracks and away from the thriving centers through which I had passed, and which, according to my preconceived opinions, were the result of northern capital or New England energy. I remained in the vicinity of this city for several days, making journeys into the country and taking notes of the field hands and making inquiry as to the wages paid and the amount of labor performed by the average hand. My zeal was unabated, and I was on the point of putting all my figures into a letter when my enthusiasm received a check that came near causing me to throw up my assignment, which I would have done without hesitation had I not feared it would mean a summary dismissal from the paper as well. On coming in from the factory district one afternoon I found a letter from the managing editor. It said:

We want facts. Your letter mailed on the train found useless and has been thrown in the wastebasket. If true, it was a very good editorial, but we do not want editorials from you. If you still have my order read it over and you will find in it nothing about the racial question or political problems. Study the white people, especially the families of the old regime, and bear in mind always that whatever you write will be copied there. Your letters, therefore, should be just and truthful, whatever else there may be. If you were an artist with the brush I should say paint a picture of some old colonial homesteads and antebellum plantations. Since you can't paint, write of them as they are. Bring the scenes in Georgia vividly before the people of Boston. They can draw their own conclusions. Let your pictures be of people and places only as you see them.

That was all, but it was sufficient to shatter my hopes and discourage all further attempts to make sure of the electoral vote of New England. Disconsolate and with a vague sense of my own ignorance, I boarded a train that night bound somewhere in a southerly direction—I did not know and I did not care where.

When I awoke the next morning the odor which filled every crevice of the car told me that I had entered the pine belt of Georgia during my sleep. I threw up my window and inhaled great drafts of fresh air. I felt invigorated and ready to carry out my assignment, no matter where it led me, the farther into the pine forests and out of the reach of managing editors, I thought, the better. Later in the day I left the main road and took the narrow gauge line which I was told followed the bed of the Savannah river and passed through several of the most historic counties of the state, rich in memories of the past and peopled mostly by remnants of the old colonial and antebellum families, who had in the past made them the most influential centers of the state.

The railroad wended its way through a beautiful rolling country studded with pines and cedars. The wild flowers grew up to the very tracks, and the earth seemed carpeted with soft, velvety moss. Through the pines I caught glimpses occasionally of stately old residences, with their gardens unkempt and the weeds growing in wild profusion. Where the fences had fallen they had been left to decay, but the fields were plowed and showed signs of cultivation at a cost of great labor.

We stopped at several stations, and around each there was an air of happy indolence that lent a charm to the dilapidated wooden sheds which stood for depots, and in front of these there was always to be seen some antiquated wagon or carryall. These latter were invariably filled with half grown boys and girls laughing and chattering like a lot of magpies as the train pulled up. They were there presumably to get the mail, but as I thought more likely to exchange bits of gossip and to find out what was "going on" down the road. I gave myself up to listening to their chatter, and I found myself wondering as the train would start again on its slow journey how many of these bright and innocent faces there would be at the next station to greet us. It would indeed take some time, I thought, to get a proper estimate of these people, whose clothes would indicate that they belonged to the farming and laboring classes, but whose conversation, accent and grammatical phrasing would lead one to believe they represented a class better educated and with more culture than one is likely to discover in such out of the way counties as those through which we were now passing.

By degrees the few passengers who had taken this train got off, and toward the end of the journey there was no one in the coach but a venerable looking old gentleman and myself. He wore a long frock coat and an old fashioned silk hat. He represented a type I had begun to know and recognize. He seemed well known along the road. It was "Howdy, Colonel Turpin?" at every station now, and some one always asked, "How's Ellen?" His clean shaven face would wreath itself in a smile as invariably he would make answer:

"Ellen's well, but between the cooking and the music she has little time left to frolic with you young people."

"It's her own fault," said some one at one of the stations, "for all she has got to do is to choose which farm she prefers, that of Squire Hawkins or Jim Wadley's Hollyhurst." At this there was a burst of merriment from the young people in the wagons.

"Don't be putting such notions in my Ellen's head just now," he would laugh back. "Ellen and Bud have their old father and mother to look after for awhile yet, to say nothing of the Pines."

"Bud can do that by himself," called out one youth. Then he suddenly turned red and hung his head as he saw the girls casting their eyes from one to the other and laughing.

"I dare say there are others of us who have used that argument to Ellen before this and many a time," added another boy scarce out of his teens, "so you need not bother to repeat it, colonel."

By the time our train had started again I had determined to introduce myself to the colonel, for I saw material in him for a letter. By way of opening operations I asked him the distance to Oglethorpe station, where I had expected to leave the train.

"About five miles, sir," he said, and, with a courteous, old fashioned bow across the aisle, he added, "May I ask if you are bound there?"

I told him that was my destination. He then continued:

"If it be not too impertinent, may I ask you what takes you to such an out of the way place? You are not a lawyer from Atlanta, are you, sir?"

There seemed to me to be a note of alarm in the question, and he appeared greatly relieved and his face brightened visibly when I told him that I was not a lawyer and was visiting Georgia for the first time. I soon learned the cause of his anxiety as to the matter of my profession, for in a confidential whisper, which could have been heard throughout the car had there been others in it, he said:

"When smart looking young men like you come up this road they bring trouble with them usually and as often leave more behind, sir."

"How is that?" determined to burrow as deep as possible in this antebellum soil, which I believed to be rich from the wild and uncultivated growth of experience. "Don't smart looking men often come up this road?"

"Hardly ever but to foreclose some poor devil's mortgage." Here he began to laugh immoderately, and when his risibles had subsided sufficiently to explain, for I was somewhat surprised at his sudden burst of merriment, he said:

"I'll bet you a pine knot all sawed up against a bushel of potatoes that at a half dozen stations bets are being made right now that you have come up to foreclose the mortgage on the Pines. That's my place, you know. I'll have a good laugh at their expense when I go down the road again."

Are all the plantations about here mortgaged?" I asked.

"Mostly," he said. "I know my plantation is, and heavily, too, but most of the planters don't like to acknowledge it. Old Bill Hollins vowed his wasn't for ten years, and then one day a fellow looking about like you came up and closed him out. He was so ashamed at being caught in a lie that he moved out of the county and has never been back since."

"I sincerely hope, sir, that your frankness in the matter may be rewarded by an indefinite delay in the foreclosure proceedings," I said, deeply touched at the honest avowal of the old gentleman, who, I saw, felt much deeper on the subject than he would have liked me to think.

"I don't know," he said; "I can't tell. Up to this time Bud has been able to meet the interest regularly, and as long as he does that I suppose we have little to fear."

A Blessing to the Farmer's Wife

THE Bell Telephone Service lightens the domestic tasks of the farmer's wife.

In the family circle, the Bell Service is indispensable. It is a constant household companion. It shops for her when she is too busy to go to town. It brings her in close touch with the social life of the community. Loved ones far away may be reached, for the Bell field is almost limitless. It relieves the monotony of life. She cannot be lonesome with the Bell Service at her command. It is a constant source of pleasure and profit in the home circle.

Talk it over with our local manager.

CARE OF THE FEET.

For excessive perspiration, bathe the feet in water in which a few drops of ammonia have been poured, and follow by a good rubbing with alcohol. For tender feet, a bandage wet with alum water and put on when retiring will be found very strengthening. Always buy good shoes. Cheap ones, as a rule, are not worth the money paid for them. Have three pairs always on hand—a heavy pair exclusively for walking, a best pair, and a pair for the house. It means rest for the feet, rest for the shoes, and a longer usefulness to both.

Carney's Shoe Store has a fine new stock of easy, good-fitting shoes, and twenty years of experience in fitting feet. Look for the red front.

Blue Danube Talcum Powder—the nicest yet. A large can, 25c. A vanity box free, only at Nesom's Drug Store.

CENTRAL STABLES.

Life is made up of little things, but that is no reason why we should overlook the great ones, and among these is California—Glendale, for instance. Look it over—drive around behind a team from this stable—and you will see it in the right light. Everything the best. Come and see us.

A SERVICE WORTH WHILE.

State Printer Friend W. Richardson is to be thanked for the material reduction which it was possible for the state board of education to make yesterday in the price of text books to school children. By his businesslike method in public office he has rendered a service of great value, for the benefits which the children and their parents will enjoy are attributable entirely to what he has done, the royalties and postage remaining fixed charges.

Mr. Richardson's achievement is little short of remarkable. In his own department; that is, in the actual production of the books, he has reduced the cost 24½ per cent. In other words, in the state's publishing house he has cut practically a quarter from the expense of turning out its largest and most important product. The percentage of net reduction in the price of the books is decreased because the charges for royalties and postage remain the same, but as far as he controls, Mr. Richardson has given a demonstration of what an efficient administration of a public office can accomplish when it strives only for the good of the people. That he will be able to introduce still more econmics and thus greatly increase the saving to parents in the purchase of textbooks for their children is our belief after consideration of what he has already done.

Mr. Richardson's work is all the more deserving of appreciation, because of the deplorable condition of affairs that he found upon taking office. It offers the strongest kind of an argument against the substitute amendment proposed for the Shanahan free textbook measure, inasmuch as the substitute contemplates discontinuance of textbook publication by the state. And with the prospect that he will succeed in reducing the cost of books still further, the props are knocked from beneath the contention that the production and issuance of them free to the children of California would impose a financial burden too heavy for the state to bear.

It is with genuine pleasure that we commend Mr. Richardson's administration of his office. He has shown himself one of the most useful officials in the service of the people of the state.—Sacramento Union.

COME OVER AND HELP US GROW

It is good settlers we want; and we are getting them, too

The San Jacinto Board of Trade People are making bids for settlers, feeling confident that they are offering the best and cheapest high-class ranch and fruit lands to be had in any section, barring none in the whole State. These lands have not been advanced since this Great Water Discovery. Therefore a moment should not be lost. The wise will make their selection before the price is trebled or even quadrupled. Home, back Home, was never like a Home in the Beautiful SAN JACINTO VALLEY for either ranch or business purposes. No desert in this Valley, every foot under a high state of cultivation. Its products excel those raised in any other district. The soil is easy to work, just like one big, mellow garden. Its climatic condition is perfect.

The New Water Discovery made recently places this Valley in the most envied and sought after location in the whole State.

A Committee with autos has been appointed to show everybody around free, and we extend a hearty invitation to all of our good neighbors to see this beautiful little Valley of ours in all its glory. Come over on the Santa Fe in the morning, back in the evening.

The Odd Fellows and Rebekahs made a very good showing at the Baptist Church on Sunday evening last, and listened to the sermon preached by Rev. Norton, assisted by the Baptist minister.

There is one little fellow in Glendale who feels slighted because his arrival was not mentioned before, and that is the litle son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Phoenix of Oak street, who made his appearance in our midst about one month ago.

Not a few Glendale children took advantage of the Examiner's benefit for them at Venice on Monday, and started as early as seven o'clock for that place, where they enjoyed themselves to their hearts' content until late in the afternoon. Some of the smaller ones were lost the biggest part of the time, and were jammed, and pushed, and had many a bump, but that was all right, for they had, to use their own expression, "a dandy time."
